Dear Dr. Falconer,

It is with great regret that I write you this morning, to offer my resignation of the position I have held under you these four years past. They have been four very pleasant years, during which my friendly relations with very many students have been a real stimulus to work on their behalf. I owe more than I can express to the Heads of my department, and in chiefly have learned from them most of what I know.

From now on, I hope to devote myself to the work of the Commission on Unemployment, whose activities, I cannot doubt, will extend well into the next academic year. I feel that its work will have real value for the Province, and look to that to justify my judgment.

Believe me,

Very truly yours,

Gilbert E. Jackson.

Dear Mr. Jackson:

I am sorry to get your letter to-day. Have you spoken to Professor Mayor about the matter? If not I think it would be well to speak to him first.

Yours sincerely,

Professor.

Dear Dr. Falconer,

Many thanks for your letter of this morning. I took the precaution of discussing my resignation with Dr Mavor and Professor Lloyd, before leaving it in your office yesterday.

I am sorry for this situation on you, at a time when your domestic anxieties are great, and hope it is not impertinent to offer you my very sincere sympathy.

Believe me,

Yours very truly,

Gilbert E. Jackson
